Jim has struggled with alcoholism since he was 20 years old.

● After a fight in a local bar, Jim was convicted of two counts of aggravated assault, and his sentence included:

• 90 days in jail,

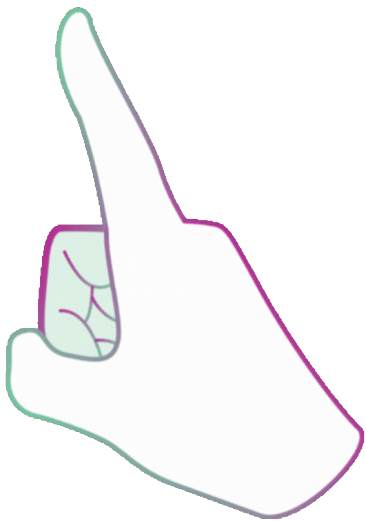

• Two years of probation, and

● Participation in an alcohol treatment program.

● He continues to attend AA meetings.

Jim, 63

- Jim is one of the estimated 30 million people in America currently eligible for record clearance.
- The complex process, the cost of getting a lawyer, and the time it takes to go to court have kept Jim from filing a petition to have his record cleared.
- Tried to volunteer as a Big Brother and a tutor, but was denied both opportunities because of his record.
